EX-CONVICT HELD FOR KIDNAPING OF MUSKEGON CHILD

SWIMMING GIRL IS NEAR DEATH, RESULT OF EXPOSURE.

GUARD PRISONER

Public Feeling Running High as Abductor Is Lodged in County Jail.

BULLETIN.

Muskegon, Mich.—Raymond E. Wilson of Grand Rapids, arrested on a charge of kidnaping 11 year old Rosalie Shanty, pleaded guilty to a charge of abduction when arraigned in court here today.

Wilson was sentenced to from 35 to 40 years in state prison.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Muskegon, Mich.—While 11 year old Rosalie Shanty lay near death in a farm house at Dublin, Mich., early Thursday, Raymond E. Wilson of Grand Rapids was being held in the county jail here under guard of the man who kidnaped the child last Sunday, drove with her to the Jack pine swamps and there abandoned her.

Wilson confessed the short report, that he abducted the girl. A formal charge of kidnaping was lodged against him and officers announced he would be arraigned on that charge unless developments in the girl's condition warranted a change.

Girl May Not Live

Word from Dublin Thursday morning was that Rosalie, widely known here as the "swimming girl," through her expert exhibitions at a local beach last summer, might not recover. She still was in a semi-conscious state and suffering from a high fever as a result of exposure in the forests where she was found by a farmer, her clothing torn to shreds and her body scorched and bruised by the underbrush.

In his statement to the authorities Wilson was quoted as saying he enticed the child into his automobile as she was leaving a church here Sunday, drove her about the city for some time, then started for Dublin, near that town, the reported statement said, Rosalie became alarmed and asked to be let out of the car. Wilson said he left her near a farm house and then returned to Grand Rapids.

Kidnaper Was Drunk

The prisoner said he was intoxicated when he took the girl into his machine, and was unable to explain his action.

Feeling ran high in Muskegon when it became known that Wilson had been taken to jail. Numerous deputy sheriffs and police reserves were called out to guard against disorders.

A strong crowd was thrown around the jail and citizens were not permitted to congregate in the street for blocks around the building.

Wilson is 41 years old and has been married twice. Officers said he had a police record and had served a term in Jackson prison.

MURDER WOMAN'S DEED, IS BELIEF OF JAMES MILLS

WIDOWER OF VICTIM IN FRANK STATEMENT TO REPORTERS.

JEALOUSY CAUSE?

Never Heard Gossip About Mrs. Mills and Rector, Declares Husband.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New Brunswick, N. J.—Looking up from work in a coal bin in the basement of the school house where he is janitor, James Mills, whose wife, Eleanor, was murdered by the Rev. Edward W. Hall, Sept. 14, Thursday took issue with some of the statements made Wednesday by the clergyman's widow in an interview.

Mr. Mills said he met Mrs. Hall at the church at 8:30 a. m. Sept. 15. Mrs. Hall said Wednesday she was at church at 7 o'clock.

Commenting on Mrs. Hall's statement that she was not vindictive, and that she did not care to see any one punished for the murder, Mr. Mills said:

"I am not vindictive either, but I want to see the murderer punished. I believe it was a woman's deed. All these theories about blackmail and robbery and things are all rot. It was jealousy and I think her throat was cut in spite, because of her beautiful singing."

Never Heard Gossip About my wife and Dr. Hall. If I had I would not have stood for it for a single minute. I am man enough not to have kept that job at the church. If I thought there was anything wrong between the minister and my wife."

The authorities are closely studying Mrs. Hall's replies to newspapermen Wednesday, in which the widow voiced her belief in Dr. Hall's statement that she had no theories as to the murder, said she did not seek revenge and denied the accusations made against her by Mrs. Jane Gibson.

TWO MINNOWS ADDED TO TWO GOLDFISH, TOTAL 64 (?) FISH

[BY GAZETTE CORRESPONDENT.]

Beloit.—Mrs. Frank Lloyd put two minnows in a large cement stock tank on the first day of June, 1921. On June 15, she added two gold fish from her globe.

Late in the fall, before it froze, she took out 64 fish, besides the originals, the gold fish growing to three times their size. There were many freaks. One fish was cream color, some were yellow, many others were glistening marked. One was especially marked, having a long black stripe with a bright red stripe on each side and covering the other half.

Lloyd kept the fish in a 20 gallon tank in the basement. They were all sizes, some seeming more hardy and lively than the real gold fish.

This is a true story. Who can doubt it?

ORFORDVILLE

Orfordville.—Fifty members of the Woman's Study club and their friends went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Hoff, town of Orfordville, Tuesday night, for a Halloween party. Only a few knew of the destination of the company when the nine cars left the village. The way, however, had been placed with Jack-o'-lanterns so that no mistake could be made. Upon arriving at the farm home they were ushered into the house by way of the cellar where they were confronted by ghosts and zombies. The interior of the house was decorated in appropriate fashion, with owls, witches and bats, while the old furniture reflected a ghostly and creepy in a corner near a school of corn. The evening was spent with stunts of various kinds and a lunch was served by the members of the club. Steiner Haupt then commenced excavation for a residence which he will erect at the western part of the village near the Fred Barling and A. C. Schroeder residence. He expects to complete it before cold weather. Parties were in the village Wednesday, circulating a petition addressed to the state highway commission, asking that highway 104 be left as originally laid—Dr. G. W. Poling and wife are in attendance at the Tri-State Medical meeting at Peoria, Ill.—The Matthews sale on the old W. F. Krueger farm Tuesday will start Nov. 10 and will last until Christmas. Both companies expect to have large gasoline boats on the lake. Tons of herring are caught here every year.

BLIND YOUNGSTERS MAKE MERRY IN HALLOWEEN PARTY

The Halloween masquerade and dancing party which has become an annual event at the Wisconsin school for blind was held Tuesday night in the school gymnasium. Perhaps no other event of the school year is anticipated with more pleasure by the pupils than the celebration of Halloween, culminating as it does in the party.

The masquerade occupied the first part of the evening and there is nothing conceivable to the imagination which was not represented either by a member of the faculty or of the student body. The decorations of the hall formed a fitting background for the fantastic array of costumes which greeted the eye when the signal to unmask was given by switching on the electric lights.

Guessing games, stunts and charades in which nothing of the Halloween spirit was lacking passed the time until refreshments were served after which "on with the dance" until 11 p. m. when—lights out.

4 BARRELS OF FOOD, SENT TO ORPHANAGE

As a result of the harvest ingathering in St. Peter's Lutheran church Sunday, four barrels of canned and preserved fruits and vegetables were sent to the Lutheran orphanage, St. Miller. One hundred and thirty-seven quarts of fruit and berries were in the shipment. Mesdames A. M. Mauberg, Irma Schmitt, Doreen Dux, and Miss H. Kueck were on the packing committee.

WATCH BABY, MOTHER!

CHILDREN'S COLDS OFTEN LEAD TO PNEUMONIA.

A sneeze or two, a shuffle, and baby's cold is on its way. The seriousness of the situation is often ignored. Babies cannot take care of themselves. Mothers must.

Upon first indications of a cold, apply a very small amount of Mucosolvent, (which can be had at any store) up each nostril. Baby will breathe the soothing vapors which will clear his little head and heal the inflamed membranes. No nasty medicine. No upset stomach. No trouble. Absolutely safe and perfectly simple.

Hot wet towels to throat and chest to open the pores; then spread Mucosolvent on thickly covering same with warm flannels—and go to bed.

Mucosolvent has wonderful penetrating properties. It will attract the blood to the affected parts and thus in loosening the congestion. The vapors breathed by the patient will have an antiseptic and anesthetic influence, carrying the medication direct to the air passages and lungs.

Alas, this is much more simple than it sounds, for nature will in reality be doing most of the healing. Next morning the patient will be in good spirits and usually free from cold.

Ingredients For Cold Remedy

Take This to Drug Store.

Get from your druggist a quantity of highly refined petroleum, a small amount of menthol crystals, oil of eucalyptus, oil of thyme, oil of turpentine and camphor. Mix all together in proper proportions and allow to cool in the form of semi-solid ointment or salve. Applied in nostrils and upon chest this remedy will often drive out a cold in an hour.

It is better and much cheaper, however, to buy the salve as prepared by Mucosolvent laboratory, Memphis, Tenn. Enough to treat a dozen colds costs only 25 cents. Get the genuine to assure full strength and uniformity. It will not stain the clothing as imitations will. All drugists have it or will get it for you. Get McJee & Buss Drug Co., Red Cross Pharmacy, People's Drug Co., Balger Drug Co., Wm. T. Shaver, Reliable Drug Co., and also by Wm. R. Thorpe at Milton, Ind., Dean Swift at Edgerton, L. A. Shattuck at Clinton, H. J. O'Connor at Whitewater, A. G. Boden at Clinton.

Hoarse Cough Is Warning

When any cold reaches the hoarse cough stage we recommend the use of Mucosolvent Liquid in conjunction with Mucosolvent. The liquid is a solution of antiseptics, so combined as to produce a specific for suppurative and inflammatory diseases of the mucous membrane, dissolving the accumulated, dissolving or mucus. Highly recommended, 75c and $1.50 per bottle at drug stores.

One Night Treatment.

A bad cold can usually be driven out in one night. Take a good laxative. Use the Mucosolvent Salve as advised in previous paragraph; apply.

CHILD, 6, SAVED FROM DROWNING

Samson Employee Rescues Girl from Prospect Avenue Sewer Ditch.

Prompt action of Jake Reegert, a Samson employee, Wednesday afternoon, prevented the drowning of Margaret, 6-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Gleason, 202 Prospect avenue. Struggling for her life in a water-filled ditch on Prospect avenue, the child was rescued by Reegert as she was about to under for the third time.

Happening to look into the sewer ditch as he passed by, the man noticed the child struggling on the surface of the muddy water. Then he saw the girl's feet kicking and jumped in to save her. She was removed to her home where she was revived in a few minutes and was feeling well Thursday, although she was kept out of school for fear of a cold developing from the exposure.

The accident occurred near the corner of Fifth and Prospect avenues. The ditch dug for the sewer line, 24-25 inch Prospect avenue sewer, was transformed into a deep pool by rain which had fallen throughout the day. A measurement at the time the child was in, showed nearly six feet of water.

Homecoming Day to Wind Up With Dance at Apollo

The big windup of the homecoming celebration in connection with the Janesville-Edgerton game Saturday, and the only social affair of the celebration will be the dance Saturday night at the Apollo hall. This is to be sponsored by the alumni association, newly organized, and will be characterized by a number of school officials and others, among them Superintendent P. O. Holt, Jesse Earle, president of the school board, and Mr. Earle, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cunningham and Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Postwick.

Edgerton's new five-piece orchestra has been secured for the occasion and dancing will be from 9 until 12 o'clock. If possible, some concert will be distributed to aid in carrying out the gala spirit. Admission price has been reduced to 75 cents per couple because of the large turnout expected.

Mr. Hatch's usual class will be held earlier in the evening at the hall, and all those holding season tickets to his Saturday night dances will be admitted on them.

Other affairs in connection with the homecoming are the music meeting at the high school Friday night, a band concert at 1:30 Saturday afternoon at the high school by the high school band, which makes its first public appearance then, the parade in the game, the game itself, the mile race ball game between halves being worked up by Dr. S. P. Richards, and the big bonfire and jubilee at the new high school grounds at 7 p. m. Saturday. All these affairs are being sponsored by the alumni.

CITY NEWS IN BRIEF

Win Swims Tests.—Still more swimming tests were conducted Tuesday at the M. A. A. by boys of the C. B. Clough. Dale Litney won the second test, C. Kressin and A. Miller the first. A number of others entered but failed to pass. These tests are held weekly.

Red Cross Volunteers.—Unless volunteers are received to attend the regional conference of the Eastern Wisconsin district of the Red Cross, to be held at Fond du Lac Saturday, the local and county chapters will not be represented, said Miss Hattie Alden, secretary, Thursday. The Red Cross drive, just finished, and the absence of L. F. Werdnigke, leading the local chapter who is in the east, make it impossible to spend time in securing delegates.

Ricker Heads Club.—Charles Ricker was elected president of the Oak Hollow Social and Banquet club at a meeting Wednesday night in East Side hall. Other officers are: Carl Fabst, vice president; T. L. Mason, secretary; George Kincaid, treasurer.

Plan Membership Rally.—A rally for membership will be held the first Wednesday in December. It was decided at a meeting of Gideon lodge, U. W. in West Side hall Wednesday night. O. P. Peterson had charge of the meeting. A few applications for membership were received.

Girls and Boys Meet.—Girls and Boy Scouts who will assist in selling for set-meets, Saturday, are asked to attend a meeting at Library hall at 7:30 Friday night. The American Legion is anxious to obtain many boys and girls as helpers.

Nurse in 154 Visits.—Miss Helen M. Andrews, visiting nurse, reports 154 visits to 31 homes during October, in her monthly report to the board of health and the city council. In addition she lists 50 hours' office work and 51 interviews. Taxi and street-car fare amounted to $3.70.

Set in Place.—Rock county municipal court collected $217.95 in fines, fees and penalties during October, according to the monthly report to the city council.

Have Record Week.—The Meerswa Construction company laid 172 feet on the Eastern avenue outlet sewer last week, setting a new high mark for the $100,000 job.

Car Not Claimed.—There have been no claimants at the police station yet for the 1917 Ford touring car found abandoned on North Bluff street, near East Milwaukee, 10 days ago. The motor number cannot be found in the list of those of stolen cars.

Owen Is Recovering.—Clarence (Cub) Owen, 300 North Terrace street, is recovering rapidly enough after an operation at a Rochester, Minn., hospital, that he is expected to return home next Monday. Owen, yard foreman of the Field Lumber company, is well known here as a baseball player, having played with the local Black Cats the past season. He went to Rochester, Oct. 15 where he was operated upon for double rotator. A. S. Wright, 333 North Terrace street, returned Thursday from a visit to the patient.

Closed Season to Save Deer Urged by Many Hunters

Superior—Deer in northern Wisconsin are rapidly diminishing in number, according to hunters and residents of Douglas county. This year deer will be more scarce than ever, and there is much talk among sportsmen of a closed season for several years to permit greater reproduction of game.

Close to 3,000 hunting licenses have been taken out thus far this season for the annual quest of deer, which starts Nov. 13.

More than 100 women have been granted licenses.

As soon as the opening of the deer hunting season only 11 days off.

Speed Patrolman Gets 52 Miles on Gallon of "Gas"

The height of economy on gasoline has been reached by Constable Merton Miller, who in his first and only highway patrolman has averaged 52 1/2 miles per gallon of "gas." His report for October shows only 45 gallons of gasoline used to travel 2,410 miles, or an average of 53 1/2 miles per gallon. Automobiles go from 10 to 25 miles on a gallon.

Constable Miller made 16 arrests during the month, as follows: Speeding, 7; improper lights, 5; reckless driving, 2; and no license, 1. Convictions were obtained in all but two cases which are now pending.

In addition to his arrests, he investigated five accidents and one fire; issued through the district attorney warnings to 31 truck operators regarding illegal use of licenses and warned 15 residents on the Evansville concrete highway regarding mail-boxes being too close and ordered them moved back.

Community Chest Will Be Discussed

On Monday night November 23 the first forum of the new Janesville Chamber of Commerce for the year will be held at Myers hotel and question of a Community chest will be discussed.

Justice Martin Rosenberry, of the state supreme court, will be invited to speak and other representatives of other cities having a community fund raised at one time instead of by a series of drives, will be invited by Oscar Nelson, manager of the Chamber.

At a meeting of the steering committee held Wednesday evening the outline of the meeting was made. Jos. Connors was named chairman of the forum and a program will be arranged to cover the one big topic of discussion and others that may arise.

It is the plan of the steering committee that there shall be a members' forum once a month during the winter to take up questions vitally interesting to the city.

Manager Oscar Nelson has some plans also to make a session that will be out of the ordinary and appeal to every member of the Chamber.

Teachers Were Pupils Again

Teachers became children, and high school boys were addressed with dignity as Mr. by them at the Baptist church last night, where 70 teachers of the high school, together with wives and friends, were guests of the H-Y club, an organization of high school men.

Guests were assigned to rows and seats in a miniature "main room." School was then started. Some of the "pupils" were sharply reprimanded. Frank Holt, otherwise superintendent, became too voluble and was forced to sit down.

After refreshments, the guests and hosts all formed a group, and each teacher was called upon to introduce himself or herself. Mass games were played and Earl Jensen, president of the club, Supt. Holt and J. A. Steiner, secretary of the Y. M. C. A., gave short talks.

JERSEY VICTIM OF BANDITS RECOVERING

Athens—Enoch R. Applegate of Jersey City, N. J., the near east relief worker who was seriously injured in a recent attack by Serbian bandits, on a relief party near Aleppo, in which James Lester Wright of Waukesha, Wis., was killed, is recovering in a hospital in Beirut.

The Wisconsin conservation commission is ready to see that the laws are obeyed. Only one buck can be killed by each hunter and, for five days previous to the opening of the season, no guns are allowed to be carried unless knotted down or in a case and unloaded. The season will open Nov. 12 and close Nov. 22.

125 Boys Entered in Contest for Y. M. Emblems

After working up interest in it for several weeks, the emblem contest was started at the Y. M. C. A. Thursday afternoon, for all grade school members of the association. It will result, in the course of four months, in a large number of the 125 boys securing two or three emblems, denoting a certain ability along the four lines of life emphasized by the association—education, service, physical and religious. Certain requirements must be passed in order to win the emblems.

The educational points will be won by a certain degree of excellence in school work, educational trips, book reviews and school attendance. Service will consist of home work, and securing new members for the association. Physical points will be counted up in the gymnasium and aquatic work, the former taken each Thursday after school, the latter taken in the tank each Saturday. Church and Sunday school attendance and the benefit derived from them will make up the points in the fourth group.

All will go toward winning the emblems, the first of which is a red felt circle enclosing a triangle; and the child a J-Y of the same material, standing for the Janesville Y. M. C. A., and it being the highest honor of the contest. Seventy points will win the first emblem; 50 the second and 40 the third.

The gymnasium work is arousing the most interest of the boys. The contesters are to be carried out each week by C. B. Clough, boys' worker, conducting the entire contest, and A. B. Bergman, athletic director of the association. The events for the first meeting Thursday were potato race and a broad jump. The boys were divided into classes.

Meetings are to be held at the end of each month to award the emblems.

Start Rehearsals for Kiwanis Show

Rehearsals of the Kiwanis club minstrels will start Friday night. The show is to be given Nov. 14, 15, 16 at the Myers theater.

Ross Harvey of the Joe Brén Production company, Chicago, will arrive here Friday afternoon, to take charge of getting the actors primed. He is the man who made such a success of the Kiwanis theatricals last year.

All talent will meet at Ternes-choron hall at 7:30 p. m. Friday when Mr. Harvey will start immediately selecting the characters.

Kiwanians from other cities will take sections of the house on each night. Ekhorn, Monroe, Edgerton, Beloit and possibly Madison will send delegations. The ticket sale is reported going well.

MAKING LIQUOR THE ISSUE.

If anything was lacking to clarify the position of the liquor advocates and substantiate the contention of the supporters of the constitution of the United States, that there was a great organized effort on the part of the liquor interests of the world to bring back the saloon and drinking as it existed before the 15th amendment, the action of the secret meeting in Belgium has swept away the curtain. In America we have the Association Opposing the Prohibition Amendment camouflaged under a general activity to elect men to office who will serve the liquor interests. First that service is to break down and nullify the laws for the enforcement of prohibition; second, to increase the alcoholic content of liquors permitted to be sold; and third, to repeal the 15th amendment as soon as that can be brought about. For this purpose an enormous campaign fund has been raised from distillers and brewers and those who expect to profit by the return of liquor selling who want to once more enjoy their colossal gains from the debauchery of a nation.

We have this here in our own city and county where a candidate is brought out for the legislature to oppose a dry candidate for the real sole reason that the brewery and liquor interests want some one in the legislature who will vote to loosen up the enforcement laws of the state. It ramifies the nation with other candidates for legislatures and congress all backed with large funds and a propaganda from one central fountain head. To say that a man is an advocate of the repeal of the liquor laws as to the alcoholic content and against the 15th amendment and also opposed to the return of the saloon is to stultify one's self and falsify the issue. It is absurd to think even that high alcoholic liquors can be brought back without having some place where they can be purchased both at retail and wholesale. The brewery, has been the worst offender. It owned all the corners. It bred the doggeries and the disorderly places and convived at crime. The saloon was the meeting place of the criminal and the outcast and it will be again if the brewery interests win.

The Associated Press carried the news that a large fund reaching a million of francs, has been pledged by the wine interests of Europe to make a "merciless fight against the dry forces of all nations." This followed a recent secret meeting in Brussels. It is to be a "co-operative movement with the liquor forces in America." Jean Couppie, a delegate to the conference, says in an interview, "We believe we have the right to offer our support to American wets. . . . They will find our organization amply backed financially." Of this movement so notorious a wet newspaper as the Philadelphia Evening Ledger says:

"The 'world association of opponents of prohibition' seems determined to control public opinion in countries where prohibition is a present or approaching fact. They aren't content to put their money on the table, to secure the thing out on its merits and to leave the decision to the people immediately and directly concerned. They, too, are seeking approaches to the lawmakers by means by which laws may be passed that will be submitted for public discussion afterward. They suffer from dangerous misapprehensions at the beginning. For while the drys must be credited with an effort to serve a moral principle, the wets are frankly out to serve only themselves and all others engaged commercially in the distribution of intoxicants.

If the patience of the public has been tried by secret maneuvers of people intent upon up-lifting it, what will it say of equally secret maneuvers frankly devised to throw it down?

It will behoove the voters to ask of the candidates of the wet interests whether for the assembly or congress, what secret bargains have been made with the liquor forces. What pledges have been made in payment of support? How much of the million of francs is going into Wisconsin or other states to aid the selfish interests of the brewers and wine dealers in the elections? Will the wet advocate, who may honestly believe that light wines and beer are possible without the saloon, join hands with the wine grower of France and the brewer who owned the corner groggery and wants to own it again, to aid the cause of these interests by voting for candidates frankly tarred with this stick?

These are interesting questions to be answered at the polls on Tuesday. They demand that the friends of prohibition and an orderly state and county and city go and vote. The friends of the saloon and of the French wine growers will be there. That is their business. The friends of prohibition have no time to sleep or be neglectful.

It looks much as though England was going to let George do it again.

The death of Major William C. Atkinson, for many years the editor of the Eau Claire Leader, removes one of the outstanding figures in the virile newspaper life of the state over a period of 30 years. There was no doubt as to where Major Atkinson stood on any question. He went to Eau Claire when that city was in its glory as a saw mill town and its streets were paved with sawdust. Life was as vigorous there as in a racing camp. Men took their politics like their whiskey, straight and strong. He participated too in the making of a new Eau Claire—the transformation of the saw mill town to a larger and modern city of fine homes, factories and a trade center for a country about built up on the outer lands and changing the whole course of existence. A keen mind, a fine appreciation of humor, a pervading personality, were characteristics of Major Atkinson.

That New York street beggar who bought an

HUNTING WITH THE CAMERA

Washington.—The new sport of hunting with a camera instead of with a gun is gaining thousands of recruits this season. This is distinctly noticeable all through our eastern marshes and woodlands.

Evidently the younger generation of American sportsmen, being ex-members of outdoor study clubs, or ex-Boy Scouts, are aware of a fact that well known naturalists have long since urged on our attention—namely, that it is much more exciting to photograph wild life than to kill it. As Dr. William Hornaday says, "any dufer with a good check book, a professional guide and a high power repeating rifle can kill big game, but it takes good woodcraft, skill and endurance of a high order to enable a man or woman to get a really fine photograph of a fine wild animal in its unfettered haunts."

This very difficulty, while frightening off the lazy and timid, is an additional incentive to the man who seeks, in hunting, not the spoils of a easy victory, but the satisfaction of watching his skill and endurance against the desperate cunning of wild animals. Furthermore, a game bag filled with squirrels or red birds represents but a temporary triumph, while a game bag filled with photographic plates represents a permanent achievement. Then there is a gratification of the creative impulse in hunting with a camera, which is now almost absent in killing game. Our ancestors used to kill with a constructive purpose—because they needed meat or clothing for their families—but since the necessity motive has been eliminated from hunting, shooting expeditions have largely degenerated into little more than cruel orgies.

It was the introduction of the light, over-ready, universal camera about the beginning of the present century which first suggested the interesting possibilities in photographing wild animals. By this time, according to Dr. Hornaday, the long-continued slaughter of American big game had begun to produce on the public mind certain strong effects. People began to realize that the deadly efficiency of the high-power repeating rifles and automatic shotguns was rapidly exterminating the game of America, great and small. Consequently, thousands of sportsmen became so disgusted with game slaughter that they hung up their guns forever. "To this group," says Hornaday, "the possibilities of hunting with a camera instantly appealed. Hundreds took to the camera."

To A. G. Wallihan, or rather to Mrs. A. G. Wallihan, belongs the credit of furnishing the first great impulse in America to the photographing of wild game on the hoof. Like most great pioneers, the Wallihans chanced on their discovery by accident. One day, while Mrs. Wallihan was crouched in the sage brush on the outskirts of her home town of Lay, Colorado, she looked up to find herself closely surrounded by a herd of mule deer. "What a wonderful picture," she thought, "if it were only possible to take it with a camera."

Mrs. Wallihan, a professional photographer, recognized the value of his wife's suggestion. In a short time, they were in pursuit of wild mule deer and prong-horned antelope and elk, armed with heavy tripod cameras, which they carefully set up and tended along the game trails. They camped, cooked, packed and trailed and fought wind and weather for 10 adventurous years to get the delightful pictures published in 1921 by Doubleday Page and company under the title, "Camera Shots at Big Game."

This publication practically marked the beginning of a new art, for the pictures were hailed with respect not only by zoologists but by famous artists as well. Paintings of wild animals, with few exceptions, have always been something of a joke to zoologists, as the artists' studies have generally had to be made in zoos and museums, where the animals have quite a different appearance from those in the wild state. On the other hand, photographs of wild game have often provoked snorts of disgust from artists, because they have lacked composition and good shadow effects. It remained for the Wallihans to produce the first wild animal photographs of genuine artistic merit, at least in this country.

Since then, the list of art photographers of wild animal life has grown by leaps and bounds until today it would be impossible to give honorable mention to all of them in the space of this article. As an inspiration for the reader who would lay down his gun for a kodak, however, we recommend the work of Dr. William Hornaday, John M. Phillips, George Shiras (especially his flashlight pictures); Carl E. Akeley, Norman McClelland, Edwin R. Snibson, Kermit Roosevelt, Edmund Heller, W. Lyman Underwood and A. Radclyffe Dugmore, who was the first to produce photographic masterpieces of African game.

Those who doubt the sporting opportunities of camera hunting as compared with gun hunting, should be impressed by the account of Mr. Dugmore's African expedition, given by James L. Clark, well known New York taxidermist, who accompanied Dugmore and shared his thrilling hazards in obtaining photographs of lions, hippopotami and rhinoceroses.

"As we topped a little knoll one morning," relates Mr. Clark, "we saw about 100 yards ahead of us in the yellow grass, the black outline of a rhinoceros back. We approached to about 80 yards where we had a good view of him, and from this point Dugmore took a telephoto picture. Although in plain sight, we moved slowly and cautiously toward him and at about 60 yards Dugmore took another picture. Being sure of two pictures, he then changed his lens to one with a shorter focus, while the rhinoceros showed no sign of knowing of our presence. We walked to a spot about 40 yards from him, where Dugmore focused the camera, while the rhinoceros deliberately lay down. This was a sure sign that we had not been detected and we both gave a sigh of relief. Dugmore, however, whispered—'Splendid!' Now we can walk up very close without his seeing us."

"This was no place for an argument, so as he started forward I followed, my finger on the trigger of the gun. As each cautious step brought us closer and closer and my breath grew shorter and shorter—I wonder if Dugmore was going to stop? At a little over 30 yards from the big rocklike mass he hesitated and began to focus his camera, while the rhinoceros's ears twitched nervously. My gun, which seemed to weigh many pounds, came slowly to my shoulder. The next moment there was a short, a cloud of dust and a bighorn rhinoceros was coming straight toward us. I set my teeth, held the gun and listened for the click of the camera. Dugmore let him get well on his feet and under way when a 'click' and a 'bang' in quick succession decided the battle in our favor. At 15 yards distance the rhinoceros bit the dust, scrambled to his feet, wheeled and made off."

J. M. Phillips is another photographer who has run the most appalling risks in order to secure photographic studies of such difficult animals as mountain goats.

JUST FOLKS

WEATHER-PROOF
I am no grinning optimist that laughs at every grief and care. Life sends us burdens now and then that are most difficult to bear. My failures take my smile away and when my woes fall fast and thick And disappointment comes to me, I frequently am known to sigh; I grumble when I'm justified and when fate hurts me I complain; But I'm not one who sits and scowls and mopes about a little rain.

Some cares there are which make me fret and take the joy right out of me; I'll raise a good old-fashioned growl when things aren't as they ought to be, but this I say, it has to be a real growl to make me blue.

Some trouble that I couldn't stop in spite of all that I could do. O'er broken hopes and ruined plans and shattered visions I'll complain; But I'll not sob and sigh and scowl about a day or two of rain.

I'll take the weather as it comes, and plod along my little way And, though it rains and dogs I'll never have a word to say. I'll save my scowls and frowns and kicks for honest hurts and honest woes. And not go moping round the world because it rains or hails or snows; For we must at last go above and tell my earthly tale again.

I'd hate to let the angels know I'd kicked about a little rain.

LOOKING BACKWARD
FORTY YEARS AGO
Nov. 2, 1882.—"Esmeralda" was well-acted at the Myers theater last night by the "Lancers" company. The fair at Apollo Hall by the Catholic ladies is drawing a large crowd. Janesville Guards will meet tonight and elect officers.—Racine finds the new steam engine much less practical than the old one and consequently will make no new purchases.

THIRTY YEARS AGO
Nov. 2, 1892.—James Harris will be manager of the new barb wire plant, which will make wire nails in addition to the wire. Janesville station engineers will meet next Saturday to organize a local branch of the union. The Pullman car is in danger and the heavy rains continue. It is liable to break.—All Janesville teachers will go to Whitewater Nov. 18 to take part in an institute.

TWENTY YEARS AGO
Nov. 2, 1902.—Hallowe'en resulted in fewer pranks than usual, but wreaths were issued for the arrest of several boys. The Third ward received most of the turn-up sidewalks.—Funeral services were held for William Tallman this afternoon at 2:30 for the family, at 3 p. m., at the Congressional church for his many friends.

TEN YEARS AGO
Nov. 2, 1912.—It is probable that no street car line to the two cemeteries will be built by the Janesville Traction company. They were unable to get good terms from the township board for the few rods the track would be laid outside the city.—The pavement on the east side of Washington street from Mineral Point avenue to the cemetery will be open next week, according to George Croft, building the pavement.

THE BACHELOR WAY TO PREPARE WHEAT
It almost makes me blush now when I think how pure and unchastened my impulses and ambitions were when I launched into the practice of medicine in a quiet little village in the West. I recall how in the doctor there took me under his wing—or rather he allowed me to drive him out in the country to give his counsel in a case that had me fretted. Your recollection of the dusty road he pointed out many of his old patients and assured me they were as "good as the wheat in the bin."

It took me about four years to learn that the wheat in the bin is not necessarily very good—and I learned a lot in those four years.

Here is a bachelor, of all people, telling us how to prepare wheat to eat. Listen to the man go on.

The Black Menace

A CRAIG KENNEDY STORY

By ARTHUR B. REEVES.

The story of the Black Menace has been told in the columns of the Janeville Daily Gazette for some time. It is a story of a man who, in the name of a respectable uncle, who dies, and she finds herself penniless, the entire fortune having been dissipated. There is enough evidence left behind to show that the uncle was the victim of blackmailers. The story is told by a companion and friend of Kennedy's. The effort is to locate the Black Menace who is responsible for the series of blackmailing crimes stirring New York. Ripley Granby, one of the victims, is killed. Another dies before he can give testimony. The center of the operations seem to be a country house on Long Island, where, Clara Breshkaya, a beautiful and mysterious Russian woman, is the hostess. Clara is kidnapped and held a prisoner in New Jersey. She is engaged to be married to Jack Speed, a young newspaper reporter.

Therefore, the following day I spent down at the Star and about town in an endeavor to pick up such information about Breshkaya, and particularly about Minna Oakleigh as might be of value.

I fancied that Breshkaya would go into hiding after what had happened. I found that I was grossly mistaken.

As I was able to find out very little about either Minna Oakleigh or Breshkaya. The newspapers were of course, full of the tragedy. I was not in special circles, but when one dines under the vast amount of sob stuff that was printed, one found very little information.

As for Breshkaya, reports that I was able to get of her during the last few days when I knew in the "White Light" section of Broadway seemed to indicate that the death of Thorne had been a hard blow to her. Somehow her dancing partner exuded a power over her that no other man seemed yet to have awakened.

More than that, as nearly as I could make out, Breshkaya seemed to be a changed woman. It was not money, however, that was now a hardness and heartlessness in her that had been lacking before.

Many noticed the sudden difference. No longer was she merely the gay butterfly, thoughtless pleasure loving. Actually now her every action seemed to be coldly calculating. As I pieced together what I learned from her intimates, I could do no better than compare her to a money machine. It seemed as if she was determined that every man who looked on her should be turned to stone, as it were, and perish.

The more that I thought of the change, the more I saw that our search for the Black Menace must revolve around this dancer, and the more difficult it was going to be. What the hold was that the Black Menace held on her at one time became the most absorbing of problems for us.

It was after dinner that night that I finished my collection of details and returned to my room.

He was not at our apartment when I returned but on the table I found a hastily scrawled note:

"Come from Speed to meet him at laboratory. You'll find him there."

"CRAG"

I was not surprised, for I had hardly thought to find him in. Leisurely I hurried my way over to the laboratory, which at that hour of the night was rather deserted.

As I approached, I was surprised not to see any light in it and I quickly turned back. What more surprised and even alarmed me was that the front door of the darkened building was wide open as I entered. My foot crunched on something brittle. I stooped and in the light from a street lamp saw up the avenue I saw something gleaming. It was shattered glass. I looked again at the door. The glass in it was broken completely out. As my eyes became accustomed to the blackness, I saw all around were splinters of glass, as though many windows had been shattered.

I was by this time in a high state of nerves. What could have happened? Cautionously, I pushed my way into the hall and stood for a moment listening.

Down the corridor came a faint sound, almost like a groan.

I groped forward. As I came upon the laboratory door I saw that it was a complete wreck. Inside in the dimness, I could see the tables and chairs thrown about in confusion, wood splintered, glassware broken.

My foot stumbled on something on the floor, and I bent crouching to look at it. It moved. I struck a match.

It was Kennedy, barely conscious, groaning and moving feebly, in the flickering light of the match. On his head was a deep gash. His clothes were torn. What other injury he had sustained I could not tell. I tried to switch on the light, but something was wrong with the electricity.

Instantly there flashed through my mind what must have happened. Somehow the message from Speed must have been used to decoy him over to his own laboratory where a bomb had been planted. As he pushed open the door he had exploded. Only his natural caution had saved him from being too close and blown to bits.

I looked about hastily. What to do? If I left him, perhaps the attack might be renewed. Calling for help would do no good now. There was no one on this end of the campus likely to hear.

I bent over him. Vaguely he seemed to recognize me.

"Walter," he groaned.

I stooped down and picked him up, staggering under his weight. I felt that I must get him away. Out through the broken glass entrance I managed to carry him, struggling to hold him so that the jagged bits of glass on the ground would not cut him.

The air seemed to do him good, for he was overcome quite as much by the noxious fumes of the chemical infernal machine as by the shock.

It was not long now before I managed to get a car and soon I had him back in the apartment, in bed under medical care.

A devilish attack had been planned on Kennedy and he had received it. The doctor insisted that was imperative. But though Kennedy did, it made no difference. For a time at least the Black Menace would be able to operate unhindered.

CHAPTER 14

Having made Kennedy comfortable and assured that it was merely a question of keeping him quiet for a time, I returned to the laboratory and with the aid of a carpenter whom I managed to get out of bed under promise of a substantial bonus, I had windows and doors boarded up for the night.

Kennedy passed a restless night and was glad enough to be quiet the following day. To reassure him, however, I spent the day at the laboratory, restoring it to its original condition as nearly as my unscientific hands could do so.

As I worked, here and there I came upon evidence that before the explosion had taken place the laboratory itself had been ransacked. There did not seem to be anything missing, though there was much that had been smashed by the explosion. But then I considered there had been nothing that could have interested the Black Menace except the handwriting of Kennedy in his work.

As I was removing him from the case once and for all.

It was a hard job to get the place in order again, but with the aid of Kennedy's students who were making great fair progress and I felt sure that in a few days everything would be as shipshape as ever.

I was deeply engaged in the work when Speed called, very much excited.

I knew that Kennedy must be kept quiet, he began, as he looked about with interest on what I was doing, "yet I feel that we must not let up on this fellow for an instant."

THE ANCIENT TEMPLE OF HART-PODJ IN NORTH EASTERN INDIGO STILL STANDS AS ONE OF THE SEVEN BLINDERS OF THE WORLD, AND IS A VERITABLE MECCA FOR ALL THOSE WHO LOVE LOTS OF JUNK WITH THEIR ARCHITECTURE.

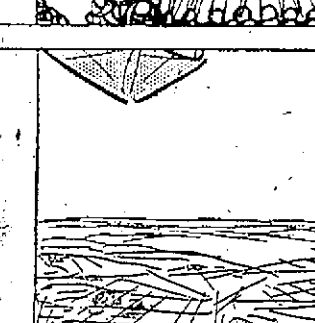

IT WAS BUILT ABOUT THE TIME OF THE FIRST MOTHER-IN-LAW JOKE AND PROOF IRVING J. TRIPHAMMER OF THE ROYAL INSTITUTE OF PHRENOLOGY CLAIMS THAT IT IS EVEN MORE ELABORATE THAN MARCUS DOUGH'S NEW MOVIE THEATRE IN NEW YORK CITY.

IT IS INTERESTING TO GET THE EFFECT OF THIS MAGNIFICENT STRUCTURE FROM AN AIRPLANE AS MUCH OF ITS STRUCTURAL DESIGN IS LOST, AND THE WHOLE TEMPLE BLENDS INTO THE LANDSCAPE.

BEAUTY CHATS by Edna Kent Forbes

AN OLD-FASHIONED TREATMENT

An English physician of great reputation in the treatment of blood and skin diseases tells me that he advises practically all his patients to take yeast.

"It is a good old-fashioned remedy which has been sadly neglected by medical men in recent years," he said. "My father (who was also a physician) used to send his patients to get fresh yeast at a store-bought yeast which at that time was near his home. He had a special arrangement with them so his patients could purchase small amounts and have it fresh."

"I have been trying the yeast treatment successfully with any number of my patients suffering from boils, carbuncles and the various skin eruptions due to blood impurities. But the brewery has gone and brewers' yeast is purchased in neat little tablets at the chemist's shops. A bottle full lasts several days or weeks. I prefer the old method of buying a little fresh yeast each day."

Years ago the English medical profession thought highly of the yeast treatment. Today some of the doctors are beginning to revive it. In America the use of yeast, except for baking and brewing, almost died out until several western doctors and one or two eastern hospitals began to take it up again.

I have been crusading for it for years knowing its enormous value as a blood purifier. It became a fad for a time and like most fads was in danger of an early death. Yet I have never known a case that did not benefit from yeast treatment. But many people find brewers' yeast impossible to get. They can get baking yeast fresh every day. In my opinion this is the best bit as taken. One or three cakes a day can be taken.

M. V. H.—Continue to massage the lines on your throat, using the up and down motion as if you were ironing out the creases, and using as much cream as the skin will absorb. Finish the treatment with an ice-cube or dashes of very cold water.

Muriel—As your skin is oily, in addition to its tendency to retain it, it is evident that your digestion is at fault. You may be drinking too much coffee, or have an imperfect elimination; although any number of internal disturbances may cause trouble. Such a condition always shows that the system is clogged and the skin is being overtaxed. Relief is often obtained by drinking plenty of water which will flush the system.

Goodness—All directions for using heena will take too much space, but I will be glad to mail this to you on receipt of a. s. n. e.

Mrs. E. K.—The alcohol in the pilocarpine tonic will not cause a scalp to be dry, as there is sufficient oil included in the formula to counteract such a tendency.

TODAY'S RECIPES

Today's recipes include three different kinds of home made bread. Now there is much controversy as to the economy and general usefulness of making bread at home. Most city housewives, it is safe to say, think it a waste of time and energy and that their families profit from the baker's variety. Experts in housewifery have estimated that there is a slight economy in making bread at home. Others have figured out that if you count in the cost of fuel and put any money value on your time, their home-made bread is more expensive than baker's bread. But after all, this isn't the important matter, because the saving in either case is so slight as to be negligible in families of average size and resources.

Whether or not you bake your own bread ought to rest on the consideration of whether you truly prefer it to baker's bread, whether or not you make fairly good bread and whether or not you have enough time to make it without putting too much of a burden upon yourself.

If you find that your children eat homemade bread more willingly than baker's bread then you ought to make it if possible. Some housewives find that what they sometimes have stale bread to throw away when they buy it they never have any crusts to throw away when it is homemade.

STOMACH UPSET?

Get at the Real Cause—Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets.

That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking laxatives, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions away goes indigestion and stomach troubles.

Have you a bad taste, coated tongue, poor appetite, a lazy, contented feeling, no ambition or energy, troubled with undigested foods? Take Olive Tablets, the substitute for laxatives.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain.

Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief. Eat what you like. 15c and 30c. Advertisement.

Murry of Badgers Ruled Ineligible-Britton Loses Title

WISCONSIN FILES COUNTER CHARGES ON FIVE ILLINOIS

Madison.—Donald Murry, regular tackle on the University of Wisconsin football team, was declared ineligible for further competition in conference sports Thursday by the eligibility committee of the western conference. He will be barred from the Minnesota game Saturday.

The protest on Murry came from Illinois, and as a result Coach John L. Richards said Thursday he would protest five present Illinois players. In Taylorville game.

Murry is reported by Illinois to have played with the Taylorville team in the notorious Taylorville-Carlinville game of last fall, which resulted in the disbarment of a number of Illinois men.

At the present time, the Wisconsin coach said, "there are five men on the Illinois squad who have violated the competition rule of this conference and who played on this team during the past two years."

These are Green, center, who played in the Taylorville game; Auker, tackle, who played at other times; and Yates, Robinson and Buratt. All five men will be protested by Wisconsin.

Says He Took No Money from Appeal will be taken at once from the decision of the conference committee, Coach Richards declared, saying that he would make a fight to the hilt of the case.

Murry in signed affidavits declares he was in the Taylorville contest as an amateur and accepted no money. After a careful investigation it held that the tackle had complied with all conference rules, and conference committee should make a different finding.

Busy Man's Sport Page

BY FRANK SINCLAIR
PROFESSIONAL football was given a setback in Sheboygan this week by the exposure of alleged unsportsmanlike conduct of the manager of the Mullen service team. Information reaching "The Gazette" through The Sheboygan Press-Telegram tells an interesting inside story.

ACCORDING to this date, Manager Mullen took his Sheboygan team to Oconomowoc and received a terrific drubbing that crippled his team severely. When he returned to his home town, instead of giving out the correct score as 12 to 0, he announced it as 13 to 0. That was bad enough. Then he wrote Ed. Below, manager of the Oshkosh "press" that the game at Oconomowoc was called early and in order to keep up the interest in Sheboygan, suggested:

"THAT you do not bring along any special players and that you take no one who is now going to normal school. We will do the best we can and try to make as good a game as possible. I want to ask you to keep this letter confidential. The home and fans are under the impression that the final score at Oconomowoc was 13 to 0."

BELOW took his team to Sheboygan last Sunday and won 13 to 12. But instead of keeping the letter confidential, he read it to the Sheboygan fans, stating he had brought only his second team for the combat. He then turned the letter over to the crowd and it was pocketed by a newspaper man.

THIS is an example of what goes on too often, not only in football, but in basketball and baseball. Fans do not generally know about it and it is a hard problem to nail the evidence. The reader should take particular notice of the reference in Mullen's letter asking Below not to bring any normal school players.

Dave McAndrews beats Kinney Matsuyama, Jap, in bulk line billiards at Chicago.

Scraps About Scrappers — Jack Britton loses weight title to Mickey Walker at New York (15). Zbyzsky, former world's champion heavyweight wrestler, availed of decision over Cliff Brinkley, former Ohio State grid star, at Boston. Dempsey promises to fight for Fitzsimmons at Michigan city next year.

Tryster wins Pimlico feature race.

Steve League Kniffling — Kelley, hand Meusel of Giants and Fortman and Bush of Yanks being investigated for violating barnstorming rule. Judge Walter C. Lindsey chosen head of Danville, Ill., baseball club—Cincinnati may trade with Boston Braves for McNamara, pitcher, and with Pirates for Glazner.

Wells Bennett, Portland, Ore., reaches New York, completing motorcycle trip from Los Angeles in 8 days, 15 hours, 13 minutes.

Alfredo Spiessens, Belgian six day bike racer, taken to hospital with possible fractured skull, result of one of four spills in big race.

High Heat Toledo, made high season run record of 11 in national three-cushion billiards.

Hot Off the Gridiron — Murry, badger tackle ineligible, and Wisconsin files counter charges against five Illinois players. Badgers worked in rain and showed improvement for Minnesota game. Gophers beriminated against scrubs in driving rain with Abrahamson guard, back in lineup. After two weeks of forward passing drill, Northwestern meets Illinois-Ohio.

LODGE OPPONENTS DEVELOP ATTACK

Substantial Vote Against Veteran Senator Seen; Friends Nervous.

By DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright, 1922, by Janesville Daily Gazette
Boston—From coast to coast the writer has encountered the query: "What will happen to Lodge in Massachusetts this year?" Up to a few days ago the answer would have been: "Certain re-election."

Nervousness has developed in the republican camp. Some of the managers are shaking their heads and worrying about the woman vote.

Others are fearful that empty coal bins will bring a protest vote. Still others keep harking back to the primary vote and wonder why a candidate of almost no political strength like Joseph Walker polled almost a third as many votes as Senator Lodge. What's the matter with this western section of the state? This is asked and variously answered as the whole situation is canvassed. Former Senator Murray Crane warmly favored the League of Nations and many of his disciples in western Massachusetts are believed to have voted against Mr. Lodge.

This much may be taken for granted—Channing Cox, the republican nominee for governor, will run ahead of Senator Lodge in the final just as he did in the primaries. Mr. Lodge will lose thousands of republican votes because he voted to override President Harding's veto on the bonus, because he did not favor woman suffrage when it needed help, and because he is credited by many who favored the league of nations as having been largely responsible for America's failure to participate in that organization.

Gaston's Chances
It is significant that Charles W. Eliot, former president of Harvard, and Moorfield Storey, former president of the American Bar association, have not been able to support William A. Gaston, democratic nominee for United States senator, an opponent of the league of nations. They have formed a group who are campaigning for John A. Nichols, independent republican candidate for senator. The latter is actively supported by Joseph Walker, who ran against Mr. Lodge in the republican primaries.

Mr. Nichols is also striving for the progressive vote because of Mr. Lodge's presumptively wet position. Any fight, of course, which becomes three-cornered can be dangerous. Lodge's managers may not have sought to appear worried but their tactics betray uneasiness to say the least. Secretary of State Charles Evans Hughes was brought here for the purpose of straightening out numerous republicans, especially among the business men and bankers, who have not felt that America's foreign policy has been particularly successful toward helping the world back to normalcy. Mr. Hughes attempted to give an authoritative outline of the policy of the Harding administration and get a good deal of attention, but the brief reference with which he dismissed Mr. Lodge, while he devoted much of his speech to other things, naturally started political tongues wagging. Mr. Hughes unquestionably came here to help Mr. Lodge, but mostly to prevent the Massachusetts vote from being construed as a repudiation of the foreign policy of the administration.

Lodge to Lose Votes
Still if Senator Lodge is to be deprived of some republican votes—and he is bound to lose many of those who have not forgiven him for voting to override the Harding veto on the bonus, and "drys" who have not forgotten that he voted against the eighteenth amendment—there is a corresponding number of democrats who like Lodge for his opposition to the league of nations and his leaning toward helping the world back to normalcy. In this state was against the league of nations two years ago and were it not for the fact that the league has been a minor issue in the campaign, Mr. Lodge would retain most of the democrats who voted the republican ticket in 1920. The voters of Irish descent opposed the league because they thought it meant too close a working agreement between the United States and Great Britain. Some of those folks now believe Mr. Lodge was unwise in helping to make the famous four-power pact which constituted the United States and England partners in the Pacific. The Irish would prefer not to have too two countries not quite so close. So there are profits and losses in the speaking, in being against the league of nations but in favor of the four-power pact.

When all is said and done, however, Massachusetts is not particularly bettered upon Mr. Lodge's mistakes. The Boston Post, which has the largest circulation of any morning paper here, is supporting Senator Lodge, though this paper was the chief and thin champion of Woodrow Wilson throughout his administration.

Lodge to Win Out
If Senator Lodge is re-elected—and it looks on the surface as if he will win—he will owe his victory to a feeling on the part of the voters that he can do more for Massachusetts in the United States senate than a new governor. The position of majority leader carries with it no small influence and whatever people outside of Massachusetts may think of Mr. Lodge's leadership, the opinion would seem to be that it is a valuable asset to this state. Senator Lodge has been in public life for 30 years. He has accumulated many enemies—he is not a chummy sort of character on the stump and he has made enough speeches on enough subjects to cause him trouble in any campaign. But while the wind-up of the campaign seems to indicate a close contest, one should not be surprised to see Massachusetts follow the normal republican trend of the eastern seaboard.
